ἄπερ οὖν καὶ ἐγένετο· ὡς γὰρ διετής χρόνος ἐγεγόνει, τῷ ποιμένι ἀνοίγοντι τὴν θύραν καὶ εἰσιόντι τὰ παιδία ἀμφότερα προσπίπτοντα "βέκος" ἐφώνουν, ὀρέγοντα τὰς χεῖρας. Τὰ μὲν δὴ πρῶτα ἀκούσας ἥσυχος ἦν ὁ ποιμήν· ὡς δὲ πολλάκις φοιτῶντι αὐτῷ καὶ ἐπιμελομένῳ πολὺ ἦν τοῦτο τὸ ἔπος, οὕτω δὴ σημήνας τῷ δεσπότῃ ἤγαγε τὰ παιδία εἰς ὄψιν τὴν ἐκείνου.

| Se | ction A: | Herodotus | | |
|--------------------|----------|---|------|--|
| Question Number | | Answer | | |
| | 8 | How does Herodotus engage the reader's interest in this passage? | [10] | |
| | | This passage is a blend of the cool reporting of an experiment, the dramatic building of suspense and a subtle evocation of sympathy. The reader's feeling for the babies is provoked by their vulnerability, his desire to know what happens next by the shepherd's delay in reporting the incident, his 'scientific' interest in the result of the experiment by the process of enquiry into the meaning of 'bekos'. Herodotus manipulates the pace of the passage to excellent effect. διετή χρόνδ: passage of time, during which we imagine the babies have had precious little human contact. ὀρέγοντα τᾶ χείρᾶ: pathos. The babies stretch out their arms and fall at the shepherd's feet – evokes our pity/sympathy. "βέκδ": direct speech. Babies speak a single word, the only word spoken to them or by them since their birth – and the only direct speech in the passage πολὶ ἢν τούτο τὸ ἔπδ: sense of significance. The babies often repeat the word. τὰ παιδία ἀμφότερα: striking image. The babies act in concert, which again suggests that the word has meaning. Our curiosity is piqued: 'bekos' could be their imitation of the noise made by the goats, so they could be asking for their milk. ἤσυχδ ἦν ὁ ποιμήν: emphasis on silence. The shepherd at first remains quiet and does not report the incident – interesting, as it is against his instructions. ὧ δὲ πολλάκίοὕτω δὴ σημήνἆ τῷ δεσπότη: delaying tactics. We can have sympathy with the shepherd's uncertainty as he tries to avoid getting into trouble, a normal human reaction in the circumstances. Manipulation of time: Herodotus has telescoped time to make story more vivid - 2 years have passed. He then draws the time out again by saying 'to the shepherd opening they said "bekos". The word order builds suspense. Τὰ μὲν δὴ πρῶταδ δὲ πολλάκἶ· meaning of the word is repeatedly delayed. Sense of longer period of time with πολλάκι φοιτώντι αὐτῷ καὶ ἐπιμελομένῳ πολῦ ἦν τοῦτο τὸ ἔπδ. Yet we still don't know what it means. εἶ ὄψιν τὴν ἐκείνου: very impersonal phrase – 'to his sight'. The | | |

| 9 | Is the experiment humane or inhumane? Explain your answer with reference to the passage. Make three points. | [3] |
| | Humane/justifiable: | |
| | Their basic needs for food/shelter are taken care of. | |
| | He really believes that he will be able to find out the answer, so he feels justified. | |
| | He believes in the power of rational enquiry - emphasis on πυνθάνομαι (repeated). | |
| | Inhumane/unjustifiable: | |
| | No love/communication offered, which is also a basic need. | |
| | Pathos of line where babies reach out to him and clearly want him as their carer. | |
| | Emphasis on their isolation: ἐρήμη, ἐφ' ἑαυτῶν, μηδένα μηδεμίαν. | |
| | No interest in the children as individuals - 'meaningless babblings'. | |
| | The length of time they are isolated - διετὴς χρονος. | |
| | The injustice of experimenting on babies who cannot consent. | |
| | How could he really expect to find the answer? Conclusion based on the premise that people 'naturally' speak Phrygian. | |
| 10 | What does Amasis persuade the Egyptians to consider it right to do? To serve him/be his slaves. | [1] |
| 11 | In these lines we are told how he arranges his affairs. Tick the three correct statements. A - He started work early in the morning. | [3] |
| | B - He stopped when the market place filled up. | |
| | E - He spent the afternoon with his friends. | |
| 12(a) | , οἱ φίλοι αὐτοῢ ἐνουθέτουν αὐτόν: 'his friends used to rebuke him' (line 1). What three criticisms do Amasis' friends make of his current behaviour in lines 2 and 5? | [3] |
| | He is not conducting himself properly [1]. He devotes himself to too much frivolity [1]. He is behaving in no way like a king [1]. | |

| 12(b) | σὲ γὰρ χρἣν ἤκουễ (lines 2-3): how do Amasis' friends feel that he ought to behave? You should make three points. | [3] |
| | He ought to be majestic [1]. He ought to sit on his throne [1]. He ought to work/conduct his affairs all day [1]. | |
| 12(c) | How, by his style of writing in this passage, does Herodotus convey the Egyptians' disapproval of Amasis' behaviour? Make two points and refer to the Greek. Short sentence νῢν δὲ ποιεῗ οὐδαμὧ βασιλικά in contrast to previous longer sentences: 'but as it is' Clearly he is a disappointment. Last sentence ends οὐδαμὧ βασιλικά - quite an indictment of a king. Polyptoton of ἐν θρόνφ σεμνῷ σεμνὸν θακοῢντα and πράττειν τὰ πράγματα: emphasis on what ought to be doing throws light on what he is not doing. φλαῢρον: aspirated first letter enables the word to be spoken with contempt – it's all nonsense. Damning indictment of Amasis contained in the words Αἰγύπτιοί τ' ἄν ἠπίσταντο ὧ ὑπ ' ἀνδρδ μεγάλου ἄρχονται, καὶ ἄμεινον σὺ ἄν ἤ κουἐ· The use of 'would' (ἄν) each time suggests that the Egyptians do not hold the opinion that they are ruled by a great man and that Amasis does not have a | [4] |
| | good reputation. Any two points: one mark for reference to the Greek, one for appropriate comment. | |
| 13 | What makes the stories about Amasis interesting to read? Herodotus portrays Amasis as a fascinating character – admirable, yet contemptible – and invites us to consider his suitability as king. Amasis shows wisdom in inducing rather than forcing the Egyptians to obey him, but we note the cynical suggestion that people can be made to worship anything if it is made attractive enough on the surface. He has definite leanings to drinking and pleasure, as shown in his earlier life and even in his afternoon antics as king. He has self-control, in that he does his job for part of the day. He is clever in the answer he gives to his friends: they will all identify with the bow parallel and will be forced to concede its wisdom. He is slippery: in his earlier life he stole money for his pleasures and denied it to the oracle each time. The recognition of the oracles which convicted him is very striking and the opposite of what one might expect. He is a man of surprises, of twists and turns which keep a reader on his toes. There is a horrible fascination in the story of the wash-bowl – the very idea of worshipping something which has been used to catch vomit. The interesting parallel of a bow to a man's life: we are invited to consider its value. | [8] |

| Question Number | Answer | Max Mark |
|--------------------|---|-------------|
| 14 | παρήει δ' οὐδείς ὑπὲρ σωτηρίας: no one came forward. Give two reasons why this is surprising. The herald asked repeatedly - πολλάκις. All the generals were present. All the orators were present. The city was calling her citizens on a matter of security. | [2] |
| | Any two of these. | |
| 15 | κατὰ τοὺς νόμους : how does the herald speak? D - According to the laws. | [1] |
| 16 | κοινὴν τῆς πατρίδος: how does Demosthenes say it is right to consider the herald's voice? B - as the common voice of their homeland | [1] |
| | B - as the common voice of their homeland | |
| 17 | How does Demosthenes go on to explain that he himself was the right man to come forward? Make two clear points. There were many rich (and well-disposed) citizens who could have come forward to speak for Athens, but this was not enough. Athens needed someone who understood the events (and why Philip was planning to attack): (Demosthenes had all of these attributes.) | [2] |
| 18 | How does Demosthenes present a vivid picture of a city under threat? Demosthenes draws the reader instantly into a fast-paced scene of action. The blare of trumpets, the vivid picture of people running about, wicker hurdles on fire and the atmosphere of expectation engage the reader as clearly as they must have engaged those whom Demosthenes addresses. They remember their race to the Pnyx on that day and the moment when they were invited to speak in the Assembly. Speed is the main element here. Immediate reaction: presiding councillors immediately leapt up from the table. Immediacy conveyed by $\epsilon i \theta b$ and $\mu \epsilon \tau \alpha \xi v$. Crisis management: they thrust people off market-stalls and set fire to wicker hurdles, to raise the alarm and clear the area. Imminent military action: they called the generals and trumpeters. οἱ $\mu \epsilon v \dots$ οἱ δὲ: everything is happening at once, with some doing one thing, others another. The speed and number of actions leads to confusion. καὶ θορύβου πλήρης ἦν ἡ πόλις: short sentence after long one to summarise confusion in the city: we can visualise people running about shouting and the fire in the market-place. θορύβου has emphatic early place in sentence. $\tau \hat{\eta}$ ὑστεραία: the next day at daybreak (ἄμα $\tau \hat{\eta}$ ἡμέρα) the council is called to meeting in council chamber to prepare agenda for Assembly: emphasis on early start. | |

| Cont'd | ύμει δ': change of subject from οἱ πρυτάνεις το ὑμεῖς δ' ἐπορεύεσθε. Draws audience in - they remember running to the Pnyx to await the Assembly. Demosthenes jogs jury's memory with his direct address. Everyone has a chance to speak in Assembly - to decide on course of action. Atmosphere of urgency and expectation: they were seated even before the agenda could be drawn up - πᾶς ὁ δῆμος ἄνω καθῆτο. Expectation again in last sentence: long sentence finally culminates in the question they have been waiting for - Ἰτίς ἀγορεύειν βούλεται.' But before that they have to sit through the announcement of the councillors and the speech of the man who has come to report the news. | | | |

| 21 | What prompts the speaker and his friends to report the matter to the | | |

| | The sons of Conon ridicule the speaker and his friends. They will not stop. | | |
| 22 | τῷ στρατηγῷ τῶν ἄλλων ἔξω: write down and translate one Greek word or phrase which emphasises that the speaker is not alone in making his complaint. κοινῆ - together, in common | [2] | |
| | πάντες οἱ σύσσιτοι - all the messmates οὐκ ἐγὼ τῶν ἄλλων ἔξω - not I (alone) without the others | | |
| 23 | Tick the three correct statements. | [3] | |
| | A - The general rebuked the sons of Conon. | | |
| | C - The sons of Conon were guilty of outrageous behaviour. | | |
| | F - Those who behaved badly felt no shame. | | |
| 24 (a) | In what ways did the men misbehave as soon as it got dark (ὧστ᾽ ἐπειδὴ θἄττον συνεσκότασεν)? | [2] | |
| | They burst in on the speaker and his companions [1]. They insulted the speaker and his companions [1]. They rained blows on the speaker [1]. They made a lot of shouting/uproar around the tent [1]. | [3] | |
| | | | |
|   | Any three of these. | | |

| Question Number | Answer | |

| 24 (b) | ພຶστε ὑπὸ τουτωνί (lines 3-5): how was the situation brought under control? You should make three points. The general and captains came [1]. Some of the other soldiers came [1]. They all prevented the speaker and friends from getting hurt [1] or from inflicting injury on the men [1]. | (3) |
| | Any three of these. | |
| 24 (c) | How, by his style of writing, does Demosthenes suggest the speaker's outrage? | [4] |
| | Emphasis on the men's lack of shame (ἐδέησαν αἰσχυνθῆναι), refusal to stop despite being asked (ἐδέησαν παύσασθαι), immediate return to the fray (ἐπειδὴ θᾶττον συνεσκότασεν), violence (ἡμᾶς εἰσεπήδησαν, κακῶς ἔλεγον πληγὰς ἐνέτειναν ἐμοί). Vocabulary of uproar and confusion - τοσαύτην κραυγὴν καὶ θόρυβον ἐποίησαν. Long list of people intervening and the anaphora of καὶ τὸν στρατηγὸν καὶ τοὺς ταξιάρχους καὶ τῶν ἄλλων στρατιωτῶν τινάς. Idea that there would have been bad injuries caused without this intervention - ἐκώλυσαν μηδὲν ἡμᾶς ἀνήκεστον παθεῖν Idea that the speaker and his friends might have had some good reason for retaliating - παροινουμένοῦ ὑπὸ τουτωνί. | |
| | Result clauses – τοσούτου ἐδέησαν ώστ ' and τοσαύτην κραυγὴν καὶ θόρυβονἐποίησαν ὥστε | |
| | τὸ μὲν πρῶτον τελευτῶντễ δὲ: just when it seems it can get no worse, it does. Time expressions - ἐπειδὴ θᾶττον συνεσκότασεν, εὐθὺς, ταύτῆ τῆ ἑσπέρα - to illustrate their determination. | |
| | Any two points: one mark for reference to the Greek, one for appropriate comment. | |
| 25 | If you were a member of the jury, how would Demosthenes' speeches hold your interest? You may refer to either or both of the speeches you have read. | [8] |
| | Plenty of action and detail in both speeches. | |
| | 'On the Crown': the arrival of the messenger in the evening during supper; all the immediacy of clearing the market place and preparing for military action; the uproar; the scene in the Assembly; the messenger being brought forward to speak; the surprise that no one came forward to speak for the country. Direct address to the jury, appealing to their memory of the occasion and how keen they were to see the matter discussed. Keeping on the right side of the jury by saying that they would naturally have come forward to speak in any other circumstances – of course they would want their country to be safe. | |

| Section B: Demosthenes | | | |
| Question Number | Answer | | |
| 25 Cont'd | Rousing patriotic idea of the voice of the herald as the voice of their homeland. Build-up, via a tricolon, to the climactic idea that this was no ordinary occasion: it needed someone not only willing and wealthy, but someone with knowledge, expertise and foresight – i.e. Demosthenes himself. 'Against Conon': horrible goading by the sons of Conon against the speaker (Ariston) and his friends by deliberately pitching their tents nearby; the drunken behaviourtarting after breakfast; the maltreatment of the slaves – complaints about the smoke created by cooking, beatings, emptying chamber-pots and urinating on them. Failure of speaker and friends to rise to the bait until it became unbearable; even then no retaliation, but a report to the general. Speaker's assertion that he did not bring the personal attack on himself by going out on a limb, but that he was part of a group bringing the complaint. Outrageous nature of the behaviour: the men did not stop even when they were rebuked by the general, but instead launched a further attack and had to be restrained by a large number of men. Speaker's claim that it is natural to be wary of such men ever afterwards. Speaker had not even intended to bring a lawsuit, but had tried to steer clear of the sons of Conon. Speaker claims to have been forced into bringing this charge and criticises Conon for not taking his sons in hand before. All this salacious detail would hold the jury's interest and probably predispose the jury to the cause of the speaker, who has apparently done little to warrant such treatment. Quality of Written Communication (QWC): the QCA guidance stipulates that all three strands of QWC must be explicitly addressed - hence in the marking grid the presence of bullet points 4-6. In assigning a mark, examiners must first focus on bullet points 1-3 to decide the appropriate Level using the Indicative mark scheme to inform their judgement. They should then consider the evidence of QWC to help them decide where, within the Level, it is best to locate the candidate's mark.
