Learners complete this task in pairs. Allocate a motivational theorist to each pair of learners. Learners' work will be judged by their peers.

Learners could print copies of the slides they create for their presentation to give to their peers.

How to prepare a good presentation

- Summarise main points (not too much writing on each slide)
- Prepare notes to go with each slide to help you explain the main points in more detail
- Some colours do not show up well when on full screen so check before you present
- Use some features/graphics but not too many
- When presenting – do not read slides – talk around the main points. Your audiences are able to read themselves!
- Practise with your partner and be clear who's doing what!
- Do not stand in the way of the screen
