Religion, philosophy and ethics in the modern world from a Hindu perspective

Sample Question Paper

Version 2.3

Date – Morning/Afternoon

Time allowed: 2 hours

No extra materials are needed

INSTRUCTIONS

- Use black ink.
- Write your answer to each question in the space provided. If you need extra space, use the lined pages at the end of this booklet. The question numbers must be clearly shown.
- Answer all the questions.

INFORMATION

- The total mark for this paper is 126.
- The marks for each question are shown in brackets [].
- Quality of extended response will be assessed in questions marked with an asterisk (*).
- Spelling, punctuation and grammar (SPaG) and the use of specialist terminology will be assessed in questions marked with a pencil (✎).
- This document has 20 pages.

SAMPLE MARK SCHEME

SAMPLE MARK SCHEME

Duration: 2 hours

MAXIMUM MARK 126

This document consists of 40 pages.

MARKING INSTRUCTIONS – FOR MARKING ON-SCREEN AND FOR PAPER BASED MARKING

1. Mark strictly to the mark scheme.
2. Marks awarded must relate directly to the marking criteria.
3. The schedule of dates is very important. It is essential that you meet the RM Assessor 50% and 100% deadlines. If you experience problems, you must contact your Team Leader (Supervisor) without delay.
4. If you are in any doubt about applying the mark scheme, consult your Team Leader by telephone or via the RM Assessor messaging system, or by email.
5. Crossed Out, Rubric Error (Optional Questions) and Multiple Responses

Crossed Out Responses

Where a candidate has crossed out a response and provided a clear alternative then the crossed out response is not marked. Where no alternative response has been provided, examiners may give candidates the benefit of the doubt and mark the crossed out response where legible.

Rubric Error Responses – Optional Questions

Where candidates have a choice of question across a whole paper or a whole section and have provided more answers than required, then all responses are marked and the highest mark allowable within the rubric is given. (The underlying assumption is that the candidate has penalised themselves by attempting more questions than necessary in the time allowed.)

Contradictory Responses

When a candidate provides contradictory responses, then no mark should be awarded, even if one of the answers is correct.

Short Answer Questions (requiring only a list by way of a response, usually worth only one mark per response)

Where candidates are required to provide a set number of short answer responses then only the set number of responses should be marked. The response space should be marked from left to right on each line and then line by line until the required number of responses have been considered. The remaining responses should not then be marked. Examiners will have to apply judgement as to whether a 'second response' on a line is a development of the 'first response', rather than a separate, discrete response. (The underlying assumption is that the candidate is attempting to hedge their bets and therefore getting undue benefit rather than engaging with the question and giving the most relevant/correct responses.)

Short Answer Questions (requiring a more developed response, worth two or more marks)

If the candidates are required to provide a description of, say, three items or factors and four items or factors are provided, then mark on a similar basis – that is downwards (as it is unlikely in this situation that a candidate will provide more than one response in each section of the response space.)

Longer Answer Questions (requiring a developed response)

Where candidates have provided two (or more) responses to a medium or high tariff question which only required a single (developed) response and not crossed out the first response, then only the first response should be marked. Examiners will need to apply professional judgement as to whether the second (or a subsequent) response is a 'new start' or simply a poorly expressed continuation of the first response.

6. Always check the additional pages (and additional objects if present) at the end of the response in case any answers have been continued there. If the candidate has continued an answer there then add a tick to confirm that the work has been seen. The 'link page' check box should be used on RM Assessor to link candidate responses in additional objects to the corresponding question number.
 - a. Where additional objects are present, all pages must contain an annotation, or RM Assessor will not allow you to submit the script. Where no response is given by a candidate on a whole page the 'BP' annotation must be applied.
 - b. Where generic answer booklets are used, all pages must contain an annotation, or RM Assessor will not allow you to submit the script. Where no response is given by a candidate on a whole page the 'BP' annotation must be applied.
 - c. Where structured answer booklets are used, the 'BP' annotation must be applied to all pages where no response is given by a candidate.
7. There is a NR (No Response) option. Award NR (No Response)
 - if there is nothing written at all in the answer space
 - OR if there is a comment which does not in any way relate to the question (e.g. 'can't do', 'don't know')
 - OR if there is a mark (e.g. a dash, a question mark) which isn't an attempt at the question

Note: Award 0 marks - for an attempt that earns no credit (including copying out the question)

8. The RM Assessor comments box is used by your team leader to explain the marking of the practice responses. Please refer to these comments when checking your practice responses. Do not use the comments box for any other reason. If you have any questions or comments for your team leader, use the phone, the RM Assessor messaging system, or e-mail.

9. For answers marked by levels of response:

- To determine the level start at the highest level and work down until you reach the level that matches the answer
- To determine the mark within the level consider the following:

Descriptor	Award mark
On the borderline of this level and the one below	At bottom of level
Just enough achievement on balance for this level	Above bottom and either below middle or at middle of level (depending on number of marks available)
Meets the criteria but with some slight inconsistency	Above middle and either below top of level or at middle of level (depending on number of marks available)
Consistently meets the criteria for this level	At top of level

10. Annotations

	Blank Page – this annotation must be used on all blank pages within an answer booklet (structured or unstructured) and on each page of an additional object where there is no candidate response.
	Noted

11. Awarding Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar to scripts with a coversheet

- a. If a script has a scribe cover sheet it is vital to check which boxes are ticked and award as per the instructions and grid below:
 - i. Assess the work for SPaG in accordance with the normal marking criteria. The initial assessment must be made as if the candidate had not used a scribe (or word processor) and was eligible for all the SPaG marks.
 - ii. Check the cover sheet to see what has been dictated (or what facilities were disabled on the word processor) and therefore what proportion of marks is available to the candidate.
 - iii. Convert the SPaG mark to reflect the correct proportion using the conversion table given below.

SPaG mark awarded	Mark if candidate eligible for one third (eg grammar only)	Mark if candidate eligible for two thirds (eg grammar and punctuation only)
9	3	6

- b. If a script has a word processor cover sheet attached to it the candidate can still access SPaG marks (see point 1 above) unless the cover sheet states that the checking functionality is enabled, in which case no SPaG marks are available.
- c. If a script has a word processor cover sheet AND a scribe cover sheet attached to it, see point 1 above.
- d. If the script has a transcript, Oral Language Modifier, Sign Language Interpreter or a Practical Assistant cover sheet, award SPaG as normal.

Subject-specific Marking Instructions

General points

It is important to remember that we are rewarding candidates' attempts at grappling with challenging concepts and skills. Reward candidates for what they know, understand and can do. Be positive. Concentrate on what candidates can do, not on what they cannot do.

[3] mark questions are assessed via points based marking. For all other questions, your first task is to match the response to the appropriate level of response according to the generic levels of response given after the indicative content. Only when you have done this should you start to think about the mark to be awarded. Please note – the bandings for Assessment Objectives are not dependent; there is no requirement for a response to be awarded in the same band for AO2 as has been awarded in AO1.

There are different ways of reaching a high level. Some candidates will go straight to the higher levels. Other candidates will gradually climb their way there by working their way through lower levels first.

The mark scheme for each paper will list responses which a candidate might offer. The list will not be exhaustive; it does not provide 'correct' answers, and where a candidate offers a response which is not listed, examiners will be expected to use their knowledge and discretion as to whether the response is valid. Examiners who are in any doubt should contact their Team Leader immediately.

Specific points

Do not transfer marks from one part of a question to another. All questions, and sub-questions, are marked separately.

Mark what the candidate has written - do not assume that the candidate knows something unless they have written it.

The levels of response start with one from the following list of flag words:

Weak, Limited, Satisfactory, Good

During the standardisation process, examples of work at each level will be used to define the meaning of these flag words for the examination. In particular the word 'good' must not be interpreted as the best possible response. It will be what is judged to be 'good' according to the generic levels of response, although better responses could be offered.

Remember that we are trying to achieve two things in the marking of the scripts:

- (i) to place all the candidates in the correct rank order
- (ii) to use the full range of marks available – right up to the top of the range; ‘Good’ means a good response from a GCSE candidate and can therefore be awarded the highest marks.

This means that it is imperative you mark to the agreed standard.

Written communication, Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar

Written communication covers: clarity of expression, structure of arguments, presentation of ideas, grammar, vocabulary, punctuation and spelling.

In the marking of these questions the quality of the candidate's written communication will be one factor (other factors include the relevance and amount of supporting detail) that influences whether an answer is placed at the bottom, the middle, or the top, of a level.

The following points should be remembered:

- answers are placed in the appropriate level according to the RS assessment objectives, i.e. no reference is made at this stage to the quality of the written communication;
- the quality of Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar must never be used to move an answer from the mark band of one level to another;
- accept any reasonable alternative spelling of transliterated words from non-Roman alphabets in learners' responses.

SPaG is now assessed in e) part of the first question. Please refer to the grid overleaf when awarding the SPaG marks.

The Regulator now requires GCSE Religious Studies to assess the quality of extended responses by candidates. Marks are not specifically given for this assessment however. This assessment takes place in e) part of the second question. The levels descriptors for these are embedded in the Levels of Response, specifically AO2, and are italicised for clarity.

Spelling, punctuation and grammar (SPaG) Assessment Grid

High performance 3 marks
Learners spell and punctuate with consistent accuracy. Learners use rules of grammar with effective control of meaning overall. Learners use a wide range of specialist terms as appropriate.
Intermediate performance 2 marks
Learners spell and punctuate with considerable accuracy. Learners use rules of grammar with general control of meaning overall. Learners use a good range of specialist terms as appropriate.
Threshold performance 1 mark
Learners spell and punctuate with reasonable accuracy. Learners use rules of grammar with some control of meaning and any errors do not significantly hinder overall. Learners use a limited range of specialist terms as appropriate.
0 marks
The learner writes nothing. The learner's response does not relate to the question. The learner's achievement in SPaG does not reach the threshold performance level, for example errors in spelling, punctuation and grammar severely hinder meaning.

INFORMATION AND INSTRUCTIONS

- Practice scripts provide you with examples of the standard of each band. The marks awarded for these scripts will have been agreed by the Principal Examiners, Senior Team Leaders and Team Leaders and provide you with 'benchmark' examples of the approach to marking.
- The specific task-related indicative content for parts d) and e) of each question will help you to understand how the band descriptors may be applied. However; this indicative content is not an exhaustive list of 'correct' responses: it is material that candidates might use, grouped according to each assessment objective tested by the question. This needs to be used in close conjunction with the relevant Levels of Response marking grid, which is positioned below the indicative content. The guidance column on the right of the mark scheme will provide further exemplification and support as to the interpretation of answers, where required.

(c)	Explain why Hindus might have different beliefs about social justice. You should refer to sources of wisdom and authority in your answer. Learners might include some of the following: Learners might begin by considering what is meant by social justice: whether it implies equality such as equality of opportunity or equal rights, or whether it has more to do with access to amenities and services, or the value that is placed upon different people by society. One area where issues of social justice are particularly relevant is that of varna and jati, the differences between them and the ways in which they are put into practice. Learners might consider the difference between social status created by birth, fixed and unchangeable - this is caste or jati, but is sometimes presented as a distortion of varna - and social status which is created by ability. The former is likely to be considered an unjust system and its continued practice within society frowned upon by many Hindus as a misunderstanding or corruption of the idea of varna. Caste as a fixed system, including the ritually impure 'untouchable' groups now known as dalits, is not considered by many Hindus to be supported by scriptures or by religious values but is rather a corruption of the concept of varna. Varna is referenced in the Purusha Sukta, which gives an account of the creation of social classes according to peoples suitability for different work and other scriptural references support this understanding. For example, the Mahabharata (Book 12: 188) says that human beings were created equal to begin with and divide themselves by their actions and choices, and the Bhagavad Gita (4:13) describes Krishna ordering society by qualities (gunas). Some learners might suggest that Hindu teaching does not presume dividing society into groups automatically carries with it an unjust hierarchy, with any one group better than the others, since all the functions reflected in the varnas are necessary for society to function properly. Others might suggest that the existence of the concept of untouchability and continuing social discrimination against dalits implies a difference between religious ideals and practical realities. Some learners might also build on this with the concept of karma, suggesting that people with privilege and status are simply reaping the rewards of their previous lives and that ultimately everyone currently suffering injustice may reach that same point.	6 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

(d)	“Marriage is just a declaration of love between two people.” Discuss this statement. In your answer, you should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Draw on your learning from across your course of study, including reference to beliefs, teachings and practices within Hinduism Explain and evaluate the importance of points of view from the perspective of Hinduism. Responses might include: AO1: Learners might begin by pointing out that arranged marriage is common within Hinduism and that a marriage is considered as a joining of families rather than individuals. However they might also be aware that the saptapadi (seven steps) which are made during the ceremony includes commitments to mutual love and trust. Some learners might also consider marriage as an important part of the grihastha ashrama and so being a part of dharma. AO2: In the contemporary Western world marriage is generally understood as being solely about the couple and a celebration of the love between them. By contrast in other cultures including Hinduism a marriage unites not just two people but their families as well and so it has social as well as personal importance. The duties of the grihastha ashrama also extend beyond the family to social responsibility and learners might argue that without marriage there is no grihastha ashrama which suggests marriage is far more significant than the statement implies. The religious context of a wedding adds another dimension. In Hinduism marriage is part of most people’s dharma and so it is a religious duty as well as a means of expressing personal relationship. This is reflected in the saptapadi which speaks of providing for the household, raising children and developing spiritual knowledge. In this sense learners might argue that a Hindu marriage is much more than a simple declaration of a personal relationship but a commitment to living a righteous life together, fulfilling their duties to society, to their family and to themselves.	15 3 AO1 12 AO2 3 SPaG ()	Examiners should mark according to AO1 and AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question. Please refer to the SPaG response grid on page 8.

	It could also be argued however that the saptapadi includes commitments to being happy, and sustaining a harmonious partnership and that this cannot be achieved simply through the knowledge one is doing ones duty. Some learners might feel that love is the best foundation for such a relationship, while others might argue that love can be built up over time and shared values relating to marriage is more important. This latter view is closer to the traditional Hindu one; however learners might wish to explore the impact of secular culture and values on modern Hindu views of marriage.

(b)	Describe Hindu beliefs about the nature of Brahman. Responses might include: For Hindus there is no difficulty in understanding the nature of God as one God who has many forms. Hindus recognise one God, Brahman, the eternal origin who is the cause and foundation of all existence. There are divergent views within Hinduism and responses may contain the perspective of followers of Vishnu or followers of Shiva. Other responses may say some Hindus have an interest in various deities or some may not worship deities. Different Hindu communities may have their own divinities whom they worship, but these are simply different ways of approaching the Ultimate. Brahman may be experienced in two forms sagun Brahman and nirguna Brahman. The term saguna means “with attributes”. The term “saguna Brahman” implies that God has a name and form and other attributes, this would make it easier for a devotee to relate to Brahman. Nirguna means “without attributes”. The term “nirguna Brahman” implies that God as no name and form or attributes. Other responses may suggest most Hindus believe that Brahman is present in every person as the eternal spirit or soul, called the atman. Brahman contains everything: creation and destruction, male and female, good and evil, movement and stillness. There are three main aspects of Brahman. These are expressed in the Trimurti, this implies that Brahma, the creator, Vishnu , the preserver and Shiva, the destroyer represent different ways in which Brahman is related to the world.	6 AO1	Examiners should mark according to AO1 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

(c)	Explain how important avatars are for modern Hindus? You should refer to sources of wisdom and authority in your answer. Learners might consider some of the following: Avatars are physical incarnations of deity within samsara and therefore likely to carry the most importance for Hindus who are devotees of that particular deity. The best known are the avatars of Vishnu who manifests to protect dharma or when there has been a decline in goodness. The stories of Vishnu's avatars are popular with many Hindus and learners might use these as examples of a high level of importance to the concept in terms of teaching Hindus about how the divine acts within the world. Learners might draw on specific examples of avatars to explore their importance and the ways in which they illustrate appropriate behaviour or teach Hindus things about the nature of reality. Rama is considered by many Hindus to be the ideal example of a virtuous man, the embodiment of dharma, and the story of Rama and Sita as told in the Ramayana is one of the most widely known Hindu texts. Many gurus, sadhus and other holy people are considered by their followers to be avatars. They are able to give darshan (the blessings of the deity) and they teach others. These living avatars are certainly important to their followers and form a unique aspect of the religion as a whole and its impact on society which argues for the importance of avatar within Hinduism. However, there are forms of Hinduism which do not engage with deities in such a personal way and therefore avatars and stories about them might have less importance to, for example, Hindus following the jnana marga.	6 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

(d)	“You can only know God through personal experience.” Discuss this statement. In your answer, you should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Draw on your learning from across your course of study, including reference to beliefs, teachings and practices within Hinduism Explain and evaluate the importance of points of view from the perspective of Hinduism. Responses might include: AO1: Learners might consider different ways of understanding God in a Hindu context – as the Ultimate reality of Brahman, as Ishvara (personal God) or as the many different deities worshipped in Hindu temples. Related to this are the different yoga which Hindus might employ in their quest for liberation and which will shape the ways Hindus know God. AO2: Learners might consider that the most common form of Hinduism is bhakti yoga, where a person is devoted to a specific deity. In this context they might argue that the focus is wholly on a personal relationship with and understanding of God and that darshan, which happens during murti puja, is the personal experience of seeing and being seen by God. However other learners might argue that a personal experience of God means more than engagement in a religious ritual but requires some kind of out-of-the-ordinary encounter such as a vision or other mystical experience. Other forms of practising Hinduism view God differently and learners might consider the idea that to know Brahman is to be liberated; this is achieved by striving to overcome ignorance not through murtis or experiences of worship. There are different ways of seeking this knowledge, such as asceticism, meditation and study of scriptures. Learners might consider the nature of the knowledge that is being sought through these methods and whether it is legitimate to describe overcoming maya as an experience of God.	15 3 AO1 12 AO2 3 SPaG ()	Examiners should mark according to AO1 and AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question. Please refer to the SPaG response grid on page 8.

	(b) Describe different Hindu teachings on war. Responses might include: One Hindu teaching with which learners are likely to be familiar is that of ahimsa (harmlessness); learners might offer this as a teaching about war indicating that Hindus should avoid conflict at all costs. Gandhi is an example of one Hindu who viewed ahimsa this way and his considerable influence on modern Hinduism means there are likely to be many other Hindus who feel the same way and who follow his example. However learners might also note that there is no universal agreement in favour of pacifism within Hinduism. The existence of the Kshatriya varna, the idea of a righteous war (fought to uphold dharma) and the possibility that an absolute pacifist stance might conflict with other duties – such as caring for one’s family – all imply a more conditional approach to the issue and learners might explore these areas as teachings about war and participating in war. Texts such as the Bhagavad Gita can be understood as saying that it may sometimes be a person’s dharma to fight, and if it is then they must do so; learners might discuss this in relation to the law of karma. The Rig Veda can be used to support the idea of fighting in self-defence (and also sets out rules about how warfare should be conducted – for example not poisoning arrows before firing them, and not attacking from behind. Learners might consider how these can be applied to warfare today.	6 AO1	Examiners should mark according to AO1 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

(c)	Explain why Hindus might have different views on using violence to achieve peace. You should refer to sources of wisdom and authority in your answer. Learners might consider some of the following: Ahimsa (harmlessness) is an important virtue within Hinduism and learners are likely to be familiar with the centrality it was given by Gandhi during his campaigns for Indian independence from British rule. Using Gandhi as a role model implies that Hinduism is totally opposed to violence, regardless of the motivations for it. Some learners might use Gandhi's famous observation that "an eye for an eye makes the whole world blind" as a support for putting the principle of ahimsa into practice even when you have been wronged yourself. For some Hindus, Gandhi among them, ahimsa is the highest virtue and the fact that it is sometimes difficult helps to demonstrate its ultimate value. However, Gandhi does not represent all Hindu views and justifications for engaging in violence can be found within Hinduism. The Bhagavad Gita was understood by Gandhi as describing a metaphorical war for control over the self rather than an actual war but other interpretations of the text see the possibility for justified warfare in a righteous cause. Krishna tells Arjuna twice (Chapter 3: 35 and chapter 18:47) that it is better that he do his own dharma even if he does it badly, than to do someone else's dharma well, and also that there is no greater good for a kshatriya (warrior) than to fight in a righteous war. If the text is understood to refer to literal warfare it supports both the idea that violence can be justifiable and although it may not be so for everyone in every circumstance. The Manusmriti also sets out rules for warfare, supporting the idea that arbitrary or unjustified violence is not condoned within Hinduism but that violence in accordance with dharma can be acceptable. Aiming for the restoration of peace and order could therefore be an acceptable justification for violent action.	6 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

(d)*	“War is always the worst course of action.” Discuss this statement. In your answer, you should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Draw on your learning from across your course of study, including reference to beliefs, teachings and practices within Hinduism • Explain and evaluate the importance of points of view from the perspective of Hinduism. Responses might include: AO1: Learners will be able to develop knowledge used in previous responses including the principle of ahimsa and its importance in Hinduism and the concept of dharma in relation to the Kshatriya varna. They might also draw on the concept of dharmayudh (righteous warfare) which is war fought for just principles and in accordance with codes of conduct. Rules for warfare are set out in texts such as the Rig Veda and might be considered as evidence that war can be permissible if not precisely good. AO2: Some learners might choose to focus on the idea of war being the worst course of action; this is not precisely the same as suggesting that war is never justifiable or always morally wrong and some learners might read it as suggesting that other courses would always be preferable, thus opening the way for a discussion of justifiable reasons to take this course. Other learners might begin with a consideration of absolute pacifism in Hinduism and then consider alternative approaches. Another approach might be to explore the idea of dharmayudh; learners could argue that where there is a concept of righteous war there must be a possibility of situations where war is not considered the worst outcome. They might draw on examples such as self-defence or preventing atrocities. The idea of war being the lesser of two evils might also be considered and learners might suggest that the karma which accrues from killing in a righteous cause is less negative than that which results from ignoring an atrocity which you could prevent.	15 3 AO1 12 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO1 and AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

Even though the underpinning religious traditions are Christian, since the UK is now such a diverse society of many religions and non-religious groups, interfaith dialogue is seen to be increasingly important for many religious groups. Learners might begin by noting that the pluralistic nature of much Hinduism might make Hindus more open to working with and seeing value in other faiths. The UK has a large Hindu population and learners might be aware of different national and local bodies involved in bringing the Hindu community together and interacting with other religious communities. Some groups exist to give a religious voice in government consultation, and this may entail working with other religions to ensure equity. Others are set up to support the Hindu community but include building positive relationships with other religious communities in their aims. Examples of such organisations could include the Hindu Council UK which works with the Interfaith Network UK or the National Council of Hindu Temples which includes interfaith work for mutual appreciation of different religions in its aims. Some learners might wish to consider the forms interfaith communication might take, for example; major world religions are represented on most local SACREs, enabling them to contribute to the development of Religious Education. (c)	Explain why Hindus might disagree with genetic manipulation. You should refer to sources of wisdom and authority in your answer. Learners might consider some of the following: Learners might begin by identifying what is meant by genetic manipulation and the different forms it might take, including concepts like ‘designer babies’, screening embryos for genetic conditions before implanting them and the physical manipulation of genes to create specific traits in organisms. Hindu attitudes to the issue overall might vary depending on how the term is understood; there might be different responses to each form of genetic manipulation. The motivation of the scientists concerned might be considered important, with motives like a desire for prestige or financial reward being more likely to lead to disagreement with the work than a desire to increase human knowledge or to improve lives. The level of interference with natural processes the procedure concerned involves, whether or not it involves human cells or embryos and the potential consequences of the manipulation might also be important reasons for disagreeing with genetic manipulation. Genetic manipulation is a modern practice, so it is unreferenced in scriptural or philosophical sources or traditional practices. Some attitudes might be built on issues which are explicitly dealt with in these sources. For example, the Manusmriti forbids abortion, which could be interpreted more generally to relate to activities interfering with the unborn. The connection between karma from previous lifetimes and illness/suffering in this lifetime might also be a consideration, with the question being raised of whether it is the dharma of the individual to endure what their karma has created or the dharma of the medical professional seeking to alleviate suffering which is given the most consideration. Alternatively, learners might focus on the values which they consider inform medical research, such as the desire for knowledge, seeking to reduce human suffering and challenge assumptions about what is possible as well as motives such as ambition and prestige or financial rewards. These could be considered in relation to Hindu virtues such as daya (compassion) or concepts like dharma and karma as well as more generic religious and ethical concerns about the sanctity of life and ‘playing God’.	6 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

Discrimination laws and the varna system, the practice of animal sacrifice, funeral practices and laws relating to marriage are some areas they might explore. Alternatively they might consider laws which relate to freedom of expression and religious practice and the ways in which these rights are limited by other secular laws. AO2: Learners might choose to focus on specific examples of interactions between the law and religion in order to explore the question in depth; for example the traditional Hindu funeral involves an open pyre which is not legal in the UK. Learners might look at the purpose or reasons for the both the traditions and the laws in order to consider how serious the clash is and the implications of allowing exceptions. Other learners might take a more abstract approach to the issue, discussing the importance of laws for the maintenance of society and weighing up the potential risks and benefits of applying different rules to different groups of people. For example if child marriage were legal for Hindus it would raise questions about equality, the rights of the child and the purposes of marriage for that society. Learners could discuss whether people are truly free to make choices about their religion or if the law that apparently restricts their freedoms actually protects them from being pressured into things they might not want.	15 3 AO1 12 AO2	Examiners should mark according to AO1 and AO2 descriptors found on page 9. Please refer to the Level of Response grid below when marking this question.

	Learners might also consider freedom of religious practice as a legal right, but one which is limited where that practice conflicts with another law. They might argue that this is the right way round in a secular society or they might argue that for Hindus religion is meant to inform their whole lives, including the structure of society and the ways people treat each other so secular laws on those issues actually prevent them from living as Hindus.
